The Denver Mint does not mail to customers. The San Francisco Assay Office and Philadelphia Mint provide that service. However, due to some Mint functions now in the process of re-organization, it would probably be easier if we did mail the medals you request to you. Please send a cashier's check or money order for $40.00, and we will ship you the remaining 40 medals. If you want the display board, that is also available for an additional $3.50--total $43.50.

What I would like to know if it were at all possible that I could order the rest of the set of presidents heads and have them mailed to ~~be~~ me here in New York.

Dear Mr. Llewellyn:

The Denver Mint began coinage operations in February 1906. During that first year, 167 million coins were produced. There were $20 gold pieces called Double Eagles; $10 gold pieces called Eagles; $5 gold pieces called Half Eagles; and assorted denominations in silver.

In 1909, the new Lincoln penny was added to the coins minted in Denver. In 1911, $2.50 gold pieces called Quarter Eagles were minted.

Today, the Denver Mint produces approximately $7\frac{1}{2}$ billion coins each year and along with the Philadelphia Mint, 15 billion coins of all denominations, except the dollar, are produced each year.

The design on the obverse and reverse of the coin ("images" as you called them) are stamped on the coins simultaneously (at the same time) with two "dies," with anywhere from 60 to 180 tons of force used each time. The dies are engraved and produced at the Philadelphia Mint and shipped to us.

I have enclosed a photograph for you, and I hope it is what you are interested in.

Thank you for writing us.

Dear Third Graders:

We have received your letter in which you ask various questions concerning paper currency. Paper currency is produced by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, 14th & C Streets, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20228. The U.S. Mint at Denver manufactures coins only. We are able to offer the following on paper currency, however. Since 1935, the most familiar denomination of paper currency, the one dollar note, has carried the Great Seal of the United States on its reverse. The Latin inscription, E Pluribus Unum, literally, "Out of Many (States) One (Nation)", appears on the Seal's obverse on the right of the note. The Seal's reverse on the left bears two inscriptions: Annuit Coeptis, meaning "He (God) Has Favored Our Undertakings;" and Novus Ordo Seclorum, meaning, "A New Order of the Ages."

The eye in the triangle is a symbol of the all-seeing eye of God. The pyramid of 13 rows represents the 13 original colonies. The date, MDCCLXXVI (1776) refers to the year of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Two dollar bills are being printed and are offered in uncut sheets as shown for one dollar bills in the enclosed brochure, page 9. We do not anticipate the Treasury Department producing any $9 notes.

We have enclosed other information to answer your questions, along with material on the history of money which may be of interest to you.

As for my position, it would take me too long to explain all of my responsibilities, so I will write you a synopsis.

As Chief of the Exhibits and Public Sales Division, I am responsible for setting up displays and exhibits of the Denver Mint's history. The displays and exhibits consist of coins, medals, photographs, artifacts, equipment, gold, silver, etc.

I am also responsible for the tours and sales branch and the special coins and medals branch. We produce and package special coins and coin sets, commemorative coins and medals, etc.

At times, I also speak to interested groups such as coin clubs, rotary clubs, banks, etc. I participate in committees and other management meetings here at the Mint and budget all necessary financial requirements for the division each year.

I am responsible for public relations at the Mint and act as a liaison between the Superintendent of the Mint and the media.

As I mentioned, I could go on and on, but I hope the above information is helpful to you and thank you for your interest.

Patrick Crofton

Dear Mr. Crofton:

The Act of April 2, 1792, provided for gold, silver, and copper coinage and also created the first United States Mint in the city of Philadelphia, which was then the Nation's Capitol. President Washington placed the operation under the supervision of the Secretary of State where it remained until 1799, when the Mint became an independent agency reporting directly to the President. Subsequent legislation set up branch mints, assay offices, and fixed public depository functions upon such establishments. The Coinage Act of 1873 put all mint and assay office activities under the newly organized Bureau of the Mint in the Department of the Treasury.

The last standing Liberty quarter was minted in 1930; Washington type 1932 to date. This type was intended to be a commemorative issue marking the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth. John Flanagan, a New York sculptor, was the designer.

The new Roosevelt dime was released on January 30, 1946, the late President's birthday.

The 1938 Jefferson type nickel was designed by Felix Schlag. He won an award of $1,000 in a competition with 390 artists. It established a definite public approval of pictorial portraits rather than symbolic devices on our coinage.

The Indian Head penny was changed to Lincoln-type in 1909. Victor D. Brenner designed this cent which was issued to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's birth. The Lincoln type was the first cent to have the motto, "In God We Trust."

On December 10, 1963, President Lyndon B. Johnson transmitted to Congress a Bill (H.R. 9413) providing for the coinage of a regular issue 50-cent coin with the likeness of the late President John F. Kennedy. (Informational excerpts taken from the Director of the Mint's Annual Reports and A Guide Book of United States Coins, 40th Edition.)

FOR THE PAST 6 MONTHS I HAVE BEEN TRYING TO OBTAIN 1987 DENVER SOUVENIR SETS (THE $4⁰⁰ SETS WHICH ARE UNCIRCULATED AND HAVE THE MINT MEDAL INCLUDED). I HAVE TRIED A VERY LARGE NUMBER OF COIN DEALERS WITH NO SUCCESS. FINALLY, I DROVE 60 MILES TO THE PHILADELPHIA MINT IN HOPES OF BEING ABLE TO OBTAIN THEM. I DID MANAGE TO GET THE PHILLY SETS, BUT AS YOU ARE AWARE, THE DENVER SETS ARE ONLY AVAILABLE AT YOUR MINT. THIS OBVIOUSLY PRESENTS A PROBLEM FOR ME. I AM ESPECIALLY INTERESTED IN THE '87 SETS BECAUSE OF THE '87 KENNEDY HALF DOLLARS WHICH ARE NOT INTENDED FOR GENERAL CIRCULATION. I HAVE OBTAINED THE 1987 PROOFS, UNCIRCULATED AND PHILADELPHIA SOUVENIR SETS BUT MY COLLECTION IS NOT COMPLETE WITHOUT THE DENVER SETS.

THE DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC SALES IN PHILLY RECOMMENDED I WRITE YOU TO SEE IF YOU COULD HELP ME. I REALIZE THE DENVER MINT DOES NOT HONOR MAIL ORDERS, BUT THE DIRECTOR SUGGESTED YOU COULD POSSIBLY MAKE AN EXCEPTION TO HELP ME COMPLETE MY 1987 COIN SETS. I WILL OF COURSE BE WILLING TO PAY POSTAGE AND SERVICE CHARGES.

Paper Currency

Dear Mr. Trogden:

Lawfully held paper currency of the United States which has been mutilated will be exchanged at its face amount if clearly more than one half of the original whole note remains.

Fragments of mutilated currency which are not clearly more than one half of the original whole note will be exchanged at face value only if the Treasurer of the United States is satisfied that the missing portions have been totally destroyed. This judgment is based on such evidence of total destruction as is deemed necessary and is final.

No relief will be granted on account of paper currency of the United States which has been totally destroyed.

Dear Sir or Madam:

Please help solve a debate between a few of us American reporters covering the Afghan War from the Khyber Pass.

How are and were U.S. silver dollars made? I do not refer to the "clad-coinage" involving copper sheeting, but rather the coins made chiefly of silver that were once the only silver dollars available and are probably now included only in mint or proof sets.

One theory is that they are cast in rubber molds or something similar, another is that they are stamped or minted from dies.

Grateful for your assistance I remain,

Sincerely yours,

In answer to your question as to what meaning the mark on the neck of Kennedy's picture on the half dollar is, this is the stylized initials of the former chief engraver of the U.S. Mint, Gilroy Roberts, who designed the obverse side of the coin. The reverse, which uses the Presidential Coat of Arms for the motif is the work of former chief engraver, Frank Gasparro. A few of the half dollar pieces dated 1971 D (Denver) and 1977 D were struck in silver clad in error.

I am sorry but we cannot provide you with bags of coin as you request. The U.S. Mint ships coin to Federal Reserve Banks; they, in turn, provide coin for commercial banks. Dear Ms. Rudd:

I enjoyed your letter and certainly appreciate your interest in U.S. Mint products. Your concern as to why some of our coins seem to disappear from circulation is a concern for our economists, as well.

Coins are pulled from circulation by consumers for many reasons. Tossing coins into wishing wells is a practice many citizens enjoy and those coins remain temporarily out of circulation. Many enjoy saving their coins in piggy banks and the like. All in all, there are many reasons coins may not be in circulation. We have only mentioned a few reasons.

The last circulating silver dollar was minted and remained until 1978; included was the 1976 Bicentennial Eisenhower dollar that was produced in both the silver and cupro-nickel issues. The Susan B. Anthony dollar was produced in 1979-1980. The coin was intended to honor in womens' rights. When its size was somewhat compatible with the quarter and half dollar coins, the Anthony dollar did not gain public acceptance. The production of the Susan B. Anthony dollar was discontinued in 1981.

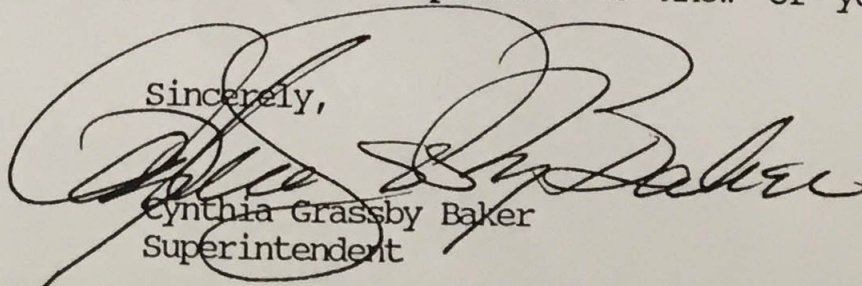

Since 1981, the Denver U.S. Mint has been involved in several special commemorative programs, i.e., 1982 George Washington Silver Half Dollar in commemoration of the 250th anniversary.

1983-84	Olympic Silver and Gold Coin Program
1986	Statue of Liberty Half Dollar
1986	Silver Dollar Bullion Program
1988	Olympic Silver Dollar Program
1981-89	Uncirculated Coin Program

A million pennies would be 10,000 dollars.

Dear Sir:

In June this year my wife and I will celebrate our 50th Golden Wedding anniversary. I would like to give on that occasion to each member of my family an American Eagle Gold Bullion Coin.

Each recipient of a gold coin lives out-of-state. I will need 4 one ounce gold bullion coins and 5 half ounce gold bullion coins. How much will these coins cost ^{including shipping (insured)} as of the date you receive this letter?

May I order these coins directly from the mint? Will you want a certified check or may I use my Master Card in payment? I understand prices are determined by the daily gold market price. With the Master Card the price could be as of the date of shipment. Is there a presentation box available ^{for each coin?}

I am very appreciative of your assistance in this matter.

Powell, WY 82435

Dear Ms. Christoffersen:

It is always a pleasure to hear from someone who is interested in the U.S. Mint, its products and mission. I will respond to your questions in the same order you listed them.

1. What coins are made at the Denver Mint?

All denominations, from the half dollar to the penny are produced here, including various commemorative gold and silver coins, i.e., 1984 Olympic Gold Proof $5 coin; 1982 George Washington Silver Half Dollar; 1986 Statue of Liberty Half Dollar; 1986 Silver Eagle Uncirculated Bullion Dollar; 1988 Olympic Uncirculated Silver Dollar; and several of the medals and coins.

2. How long does an average coin last in circulation?

Silver coins last approximately seven years. Some of the new cupro-nickel coins have been in circulation over 18 years.

3. How are coins disposed of when they are taken out of circulation?

They are melted down and re-cycled into new coins.

4. Does the Mint make coins and other items except the standard ones we use in trade?

Yes, as explained in question #1.

5. Who determines how many coins are minted in a given year?

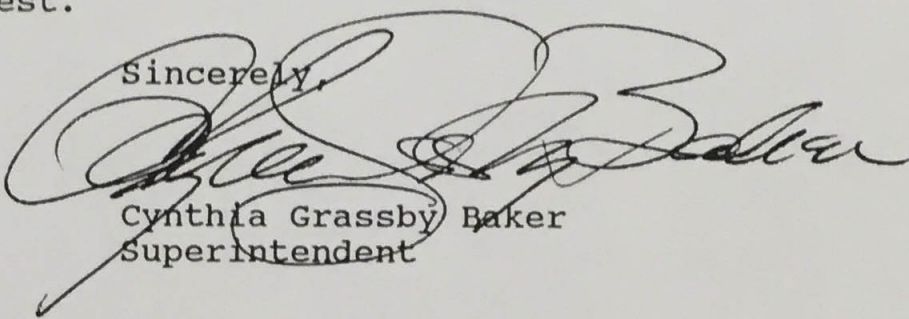

The U.S. Mint Headquarters in Washington, D.C. determines our production goals based on consumer supply and demand analysis.

6. Any other items of interest?

We have enclosed some Mint history and U.S. Mint product information.

Thank you for your interest.

Dear Mrs. Hussey:

I am hoping you can clarify silver content of dollars, halves, quarters and dimes. I have heard or read that all contain 40% silver (1965-1970) if minted in Denver. I visited the Denver Mint a few years ago and I think I remember reading something there which stated information ^{which} substantiated the 40% silver content. I also remember something about coinage legislation which permitted the coining of up to 150 million 40% silver Eisenhower dollars, all in the Denver Mint (1970).

Another question: do all coins minted in Denver have the Denver mint mark D on them? Last question: Some coins have no mint mark on them. Where are they minted?

Your help concerning the above questions will be greatly appreciated. Thank you.

P.S. The Red Book has not, to date, provided adequate information on these questions.

Sincerely,

Jack W. Stearns

Dear Mr. Grace:

We received your letter and are pleased that you are interested in learning more about the United States Mint. We will respond to your questions in the order you have outlined.

1. When was the Denver Mint built?

Construction of the Denver Mint began in 1899. During construction, numerous delays occurred and consequently completion took about four years. Offices were moved into the building in 1904 and coins were not minted until 1906 when gold coins were minted ($20 gold pieces called Double Eagles; $10 gold pieces called Eagles; and $5 gold pieces called Half Eagles). Assorted denominations in silver were also minted.

2. What makes your Mint different from the other Mints in the U.S.?

There is no difference with the exception of the building's architecture. The Denver Mint is Gothic Renaissance. The stone facing is Colorado granite. The other Mints have different architectural designs, etc. All U.S. Mints have the same mission to produce coins for commerce. The Mints in West Point, NY and San Francisco, CA at this time mint gold, silver, and special coins for yearly coin sets and commemorative coin programs which are available to the public. The Denver and Philadelphia Mints produce approximately 15 billion coins from the half dollar to one-cent for general circulation.

3. What kind of jobs do people do at the Mint?

U.S. Mint employees are educated, skilled, and trained in virtually the same fields and occupations that exist in the private sector--accountants, engineers, electricians, carpenters, etc. Of a unique nature, we have specially trained employees that install the dies used to stamp coin and trained personnel to operate and maintain coin stamping and other coin producing equipment.

4. Do you need special training to work at the Mint?

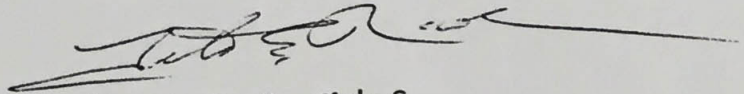

To some extent, yes, as described in question 3.

5. What forms of security do you use at the Denver Mint?

For obvious reasons, we are unable to elaborate on security, except that we can assure you that our security is sophisticated.

We have enclosed material relative to your requests and hope we have been helpful. Please do not hesitate to contact us again should you have further questions. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Rael, Chief, Exhibits & Public Sales,

I thank you for your letter dated 12/27/89.

However, what I am trying to learn is was the superscription of the drummer boy on the back of the 1976 quarter, taken from a photograph of me personally? (As opposed to a general artist's symbolic rendering of the classic colonial drummer.)

If you can ~~not~~ tell me please help me by doing so. (I have always thought I was the model for the superscription but my therapist says it is "just a delusion.")
If you do not know, can you please forward my letter to Jack L. Ahr?

I have believed for the last thirteen years that my photograph was used for an engraving on the bi-centennial quarter.

Am I the drummer boy on the back of the bi-centennial quarter?

Could you please write me and tell me if the depiction of the drummer boy is of me or just an artist's conception?

I eagerly await your reply.

Dear Mr. Pease:

In October 1973, the U.S. Treasury announced an open contest for the selection of suitable designs for the Bicentennial reverse of the quarter, half dollar, and dollar, with $5,000 to be awarded to each winner. Twelve semi-finalists were chosen and from these, the symbolic entry of Jack L. Ahr was selected for the quarter reverse. It features a colonial drummer facing left, with a victory torch encircled by 13 stars at the upper left. Except for a dual dating, 1776-1976, the obverse remained unchanged.

We hope this information is helpful to you.

SUBJECT: Mint Display(s) in The Main Treasury Building.

Based on a request from Deputy Secretary John Robson, the Director has requested that a display(s) of some kind be put in the Main Treasury Building. The purpose of the display(s) is to highlight the Mint's products and to show the high level of craftsmanship. The display(s) should be professional and should have an antiquated appearance to match the other wall hangings and displays already decorating Main Treasury.

Please send polaroid photos of the finest wall hangings or standing displays that are already in existence, this will help the Director decide whether to use existing displays or to create new ones.

If you have any questions or suggestions please contact me at 376-0560. Thank you for your help.

Sir, Madame,

Mr Mirache, member of U.S. Geological Survey in Denver, gave me your address, thinking you could help me in my researches.

Would it be possible for you, to see if you still keep records of your clients, back to 1931. If so, what I'm looking for is a list of owners of GOLD MINES in COLORADO in 1931 with the name of their mining properties and exact locations.

I'm talking about Gold mines who were in activity for at least 10 to 12 years before, and who were very rich in ore body.
(Millions of dollars in value).

If you don't keep those papers, maybe you have maps of that time, showing from where your best clients shipped bullions directly to the Mint in Denver.

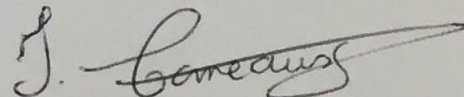

If you are not able to find these informations, would you be kind enough to give me the names of contacts who you think could help me in my researches.

PS.: In the mean time, is it possible for you to give me the address of the: Bureau of Mines in Denver.

I AM FULLY AWARE OF THE DIFFICULTY OF WHAT I AM ASKING. HAVING RECORDS OF MINES 60 YEARS AGO , IT S QUITE A CHALLENGE.

I WANT YOU TO KNOW HOW MUCH I APPRECIATE YOUR HELP IN THIS MATTER. I THANK YOU IN ADVANCE.

GOD BLESS YOU.

Dear Mr. Mason:

Enclosed is information and samples of the new Day Seal coin holder. We would like to have your evaluation of our products as a possible procurement by the U.S. Mint. We feel the Day Seal coin holder is superior to the packaging currently used by the U.S. Mint for their uncirculated coin sets.

Our Day Seal coin holder features several packaging advantages: First the coin holder is sealed with pressure, no heat is required. Second the cardboard surrounding the coin windows prevents the coins from shifting and thus prevents the coins from dislodging. This cardboard also allows for the application of graphics which can enhance the presentation of the coins. Third the coin holder is coated on the inside with a self-sealing adhesive which will not deteriorate over time, allowing for easy storage. Last the outside is coated with mylar which encapsulates the coins and protects their grading.

Please send your response and inquiries to the address above, or call (609) 266-4686.

Very truly yours,

Dear Mrs. McGinnis:

Unfortunately, we are unable to provide the information you have requested. It appears that you may have purchased the item described in your letter from the street vendor who positions himself outside the U.S. Mint's premises.

Since the vendor is not affiliated with the Mint in any official capacity, we are unable to help you with the request.

The U.S. Mint sells coins, coin sets, and medals that are produced by the U.S. Mint only, and miniature coins encased in plastic are not an official U.S. product.

We have enclosed brochures and additional information relative to coins, coin sets, and other numismatic items that are sold by Mint facilities and through the U.S. Mint's customer mailing program. We are including a mailing list form which you may want to fill out and mail to add your name. By doing this, you will receive information on all present and future U.S. Mint products that are available for sale to the public.

You may want to contact a coin dealer in your area. Hopefully, they will be able to help you find a source that sells the items you are searching for.
